THE COOS COUNTY FIEND.

Particulars of the Terrible Crimes of Gilman, the Strangler.

Sudden Transition of a Man Known as a Good and Peaceable Citizen Into a Cold-Blooded Murderer.

The Coast Mail, published at Astoria, gives the following details of the recent shocking crimes perpetrated near Coquille City:

A most unaccountable murder was committed last Friday by John E. Gilman, of his ranch, two miles above Coquille City. Gilman had leased his ranch for a term of five years to Christ Eathenover, an industrious German, with his wife and one child about 6 years old, occupied a small house near the home of his landlord. Eathenover had been working on a farm up the river, and last Saturday evening he returned home from his work, and from across the river called for a boat to cross. Gilman and the woman, who had been over and they both walked toward their houses. Eathenover noticed that Gilman carried a stout cudgel in his hand, and asked him about it, and received a reply that he (Gilman) was troubled with palpitation of the heart, and carried the staff to assist himself. When the parties were near the house, Gilman, who had fallen behind, struck his companion a vicious blow with the weapon, which knocked him down but he quickly recovered and started to run, but in his haste, condition fell, when Gilman jumped upon him and made desperate efforts to cut his throat with a dull pocket knife. The woman, who was called for help, when Mrs. Gilman came to the rescue, and twice pulled her murderous husband off before the intended victim could get away, while he lay running to the river and getting into a boat. Mrs. Gilman says she first heard the shouts for help, and thought a cougar was attacking and had attacked the man, and had no thought of any quarrel. She says, after the escape of Eathenover, she, in company with her husband, retired to their room, and he would be arrested for the assault but did not dream of anything serious. The injured man called help from the neighbors, and Marshall Johnson, with a posse, were up from Coquille City and arrested Gilman.

Mrs. Eathenover and her little boy could not be found, and a party in search of them, inquired at the neighbors failed to find them. The house was broken into and the remains of a half-finished meal, evidently breakfast, were found upon the table. A general impression prevailed that Gilman had murdered them, and the people began search for their bodies, and in a short time a hastily made grave was found in an adjoining canyon. The bodies of the woman and child were quickly examined and were taken to Coquille City on the steamer Little Annie. Gilman was placed in the jail at Coquille City. The woman's skull was fractured and marks upon her neck indicated that strangulation had finished what the murderous blow had begun. The child had evidently been strangled with a cord.

Excitement and indignation of the citizens were intense, and by midnight the town was in a state of commotion, and for some time it looked as if the outraged community would make quick work of justice. With the prospect of death before him, Gilman stated that he killed the woman and child, the former with a club and by choking her; he stated that she did not scream when he strangled her, and that the little boy to prevent his telling. He stated that he intended to kill the husband, as he knew that he would kill him as soon as he found out the facts.

On Monday Gilman had an examination, and he was committed to jail without bail. The hearing was intense on Sunday and Sunday night, and Gilman would undoubtedly have been lynched if it had not been for the careful and judicious management of leading citizens.

Sheriff Harlocker and Marshal Hutcheson were over from the bay, and the sheriff had a wagon standing ready at the door of the jail where the examination took place, as soon as the prisoner was handed over to him he hurried him down stairs, telling him to wait there, as the wagon was soon to come. Which command was obeyed, for Harlocker says it took only one step for the old man to get into the wagon, when the team started out on the run. Looking back, he saw the crowd in hot pursuit, and they followed out of town, but could not catch his horses.

Gilman was brought over to Marshfield and took supper in Marshall Hutcheson's hotel. A number of people gathered to see him off on the road to Empire, and he came out with an unobscured grin on his features that bespoke the hardened criminal. Gilman was lodged in the jail at Empire City, where his wife joined him on Tuesday, she having been led to answer for the crime as well as her husband.

Opinion is divided as to the guilt of Mrs. Gilman. He stoutly asserts her entire innocence, and she declares she knew nothing of the crime until the discovery of the bodies, and the facts tend to substantiate this theory. Gilman in his many places, but nothing of the crime until the discovery of the bodies, and the facts tend to substantiate this theory.

Gilman has been in the county jail for eighteen years and has a good farm on the Coquille river, where he has been considered a good, peaceable citizen. He was suspected some months ago of the murder of a young George Morris, and it is claimed he has now practically confessed it. Eathenover was badly injured and may not recover. Gilman is very anxious to see this movement to inaugurate this season.

There will be a meeting of the Multnomah Drivers Association at Riverside this evening, and the drivers are invited to call to arrange for a speed contest among horses owned by members of the association, to be held at Riverside next Saturday afternoon. A number of drivers are expected to be invited for among others a handsome road wagon. Those who remember the pleasant Saturday afternoon races held last season will be glad to see this movement to inaugurate this season.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government."

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public."
